ROOSEVELT TO TAKE OVER COAST PLANE PLANT IF STRIKE DOES NOT END TODAY

Vichy Government Determined To Aid Axis in Syria

U. S. Warning To France Rejected As against Best Plan for Nation

Cabinet and Colonial Commanders Believed To Have Discussed Defense in Long Session

By The Associated Press
The Vichy government last night definitely rejected American warnings against collaboration with Germany and it appeared that France was on the very brink of a last fateful decision to help the Nazis—if no more than passively—in their slowly gathering offensive against the British Imperial-bastions of the middle east.

While the French cabinet met in long and urgent session with three of France's colonial commanders to discuss defense of its possessions the foreign office spokesman answered with a two-paragraph statement the declaration of Cordell Hull, the U. S. secretary of state, that cooperation with Germany for aggression would be "utterly imminent" to the rights of other powers.

Vichy said in effect that the French government, "in a particularly difficult situation" now, had as the one great task "to safeguard the vital interests of France."

Another strong indication of where matters were heading in Vichy was furnished by a government note—issued primarily to guide the French press as to its attitude—which flatly accused the British of preparing an attack on French Syria, although saying that it was an offensive which had not been "completely approved" by the British command because it was "wondering if it had sufficient forces to carry out this aggression."

The French commander in chief of the Levant, General Henri Dentz, already has ordered his troops to

Will Defend Possessions

"The command is clear: Defend our possessions and defend them with our own forces."

He denied every British statement that Syria was being turned over to the Germans and asserted: "There are not, there never have been, German troops in Syria or Lebanon."

But reports persisted that Germans were in Syria, the latest being a dispatch from Ankara which quoted foreign military attaches as saying that Nazi air corps engineers are constructing a fighter plane base at Latakia, the Syrian port just south of the Turkish border. Previous reports had said that Nazi infantrymen landed at that port with mechanized equipment.

On the military side, the day brought these principal developments in the long drawn-out crisis in the middle east:

The Italians announced that their bombers had attacked both Gibraltar and Malta—as part of the master Axis plan of smashing at every surviving British position in the Mediterranean—and coincidentally that the German air corps has now left Sicily, presumably because that theater is no longer vital.

The British for their part disclosed for the first time, in announcing the destruction of an Italian warplane in an attack on Aleppo airdrome, that the Italian air force was taking a hand also in Syria.

The Germans continued to confine their efforts in the Mediterranean principally to threats as to what was to come, definitely describing the present period as one of "relative pause."

Irvine and Orr Hear LaGuardia Discuss Home Defense Programs

BALTIMORE, June 6 (P)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, National Civilian Defense director, discussed plans for a speed up in home defense programs today with mayors and other executives from four states and the District of Columbia.

Among Maryland officials attending the conference were:

Mayor Harry Irvine, Cumberland; James Orr, Cumberland Police commissioner; Mayor Richard H. Sweeney, Hagerstown; and C. R. Stouffer, R. K. Knight, and C. H. Athan, all of Hagerstown.

LaGuardia appointed Mayor Howard W. Jackson and O'Connor.

Willkie in Favor Of a Centralized Defense Authority

Would Have One Man Responsible only to President in Control

CHICAGO, June 6 (P)—Wendell L. Willkie called tonight for creation of a "coordinated centralized authority under the direction of one man responsible to the president" to assure national defense and as a step toward providing Great Britain's requirements.

He coupled that appeal with an assertion that "America must insure the safe delivery of at least her own production to England" because "unless those losses of shipments to England are stopped or greatly reduced—and at once—England cannot survive."

If America insures delivery, we have well-founded assurance that England will survive and England will win," he said in an address prepared for a mass meeting in the Chicago stadium under the auspices of the All-Chicago Citizens' Rally committee. The speech was carried on the red network of the National Broadcasting Company and by the Columbia Broadcasting System (10:30 p. m. EST).

Unity Country's Policy

Asserting that the country's problem was "unity," Willkie said the nation's resources must be directed "to the maximum of their efficiency. But we have no time to spare."

"We must gear ourselves for a united and complete effort in government, in industry, in labor and in agriculture," he went on, "we must wipe out political blacklists. The fittest men to administer the defense irrespective of their political affiliations or economic beliefs, must be brought to Washington."

"A master priority plan should at once be formulated. Our industrial capacity must be allocated among our military, naval, aeronautical, lease-lend and civilian needs so that one effort supplants another in proper order."

Against Scattered Authority

"The hope to do this," he said, "cannot be accomplished through arbitrary power with partial authority scattered among a multitude of competitive bureaucrats and truculent secretaries each seeking his own self aggrandizement—it must be accomplished through a coordinated centralized authority under the direction of one man responsible to the president, an authority which deals not in political theories and social objectives but in a single aim—the building of our defense and, as the first step toward it, the providing of Britain's requirements."

Eighty-four vessels of 439,140 gross tons, the commission said, may be subject to the order.

The president himself said he did not know whether laid up French vessels, which include the 83,429-ton liner Normandie, would be taken over, and there was no word on this from the commission.

Because of a restriction forbidding the acquisition, except by purchase, of vessels actually owned by foreign governments at the outbreak of the war Sept. 3, 1939, officials said it would be necessary to investigate the ownership of each laid up vessel before deciding its status.

There was no official comment, but much speculation, as to what uses the vessels might be put.

There was talk, for example, that six tankers—two Danish, one German, one Italian and two French—might be used to carry oil to the Eastern seaboard, which is threatened with a shortage because of the diversion of American tankers to the service of the British.

The president also said he was born in Switzerland and a workman there as an apprentice in a bicycle materials it would depend upon

Committee Fixes 28 Years as Top Age for Draftees

Bill To Be Debated in the Senate Next Week; Backed by Hershey

WASHINGTON, June 6 (P)—Legislation authorizing President Roosevelt to defer the induction into the armed forces of selective service registrants who have reached their twenty-eighth birthday was approved today by the Senate Military Affairs committee.

Scheduled for consideration in the Senate next Tuesday, the measure would permit the president to narrow the service age limits so that only men from 21 through 27 years old would be called up, instead of the present bracket of 21 through 35.

Sponsors said the measure would not affect men 26 years old or older who already have been inducted into the armed forces. Nor, they added, was it to be considered a permanent exemption for other men in this age bracket, since they would be liable for service anytime the president chose to order selections in their group.

Big Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service head, told reporters that "there's a 94 per cent probability that we won't ever have to use these people and facilities," the defense chief declared, "but you simply cannot afford to take the six per cent chance that we will have to use them. They must be provided as quickly as possible."

Germany Accused By Roosevelt of Planting Reports

President, Angry, Gives
Two Incidents of Nazi
Propaganda

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in an aroused and aggressive mood, accused Germany today of planting reports in the United States that Ambassador John G. Winant had brought word from London that England was all in and ready to seek peace.

Going to the unusual length of permitting direct quotation, he told a press conference that Winant had brought "not even a tenth cousin of a peace offer or anything like it—absolutely nothing like it, provided you use this not as a denial by the president but as an accusation by the president."

He immediately made it clear, too, that he was not only accusing Germany of inspiring such reports, through instructions to sympathizers in this country, but was also accusing certain Americans of being duped by the German propaganda effort.

Signs Ship Seizure Bill

The president also revealed to his press conference that he had just signed the bill permitting the government to seize foreign ships immobilized in this country by the war. Immediately afterward, he added, he issued an executive order to the Maritime Commission to put the measure into effect.

In response to questions, he said he was uncertain how many ships were involved, and whether vessels belonging to France—the Normandie has been berthed in New York since the war started—would be included. Most war idle ships were taken into protective custody weeks ago, but the legislation was needed to put them into service.

Winant, Mr. Roosevelt said, returned to the United States last week on a two-fold mission. The first was to report on some twenty-five or fifty major topics or items relating to England's prosecution of the war; the second to obtain information, to be taken to England with him, on twenty-five or fifty matters pertaining to the defense of the United States.

Hitler Dupes in America

Then he began, without further questioning, his exorcism of the German propaganda and of what he considered its dupes here. An amazing coincidence was involved; he said, and he hoped that coincidence was the correct word to apply.

Just before Winant reached this country, he said, two memoranda were called to his attention. They dealt with orders that had been issued in Berlin, not issued to people in Germany or in Europe, but to Nazis in the United States, including, he said, people who are in favor of appeasement.

These orders, he added, for emphasis, came from Germany, and he went on to say that such orders are regularly reported to him in detail. These particular orders, he continued, related to two things which the Nazis in this country were instructed to play up.

Two Charges Against Nazis

The first, he said, was the Germans had no thought, not the slightest in the world—said in a tone dripping with sarcasm—of ever doing anything against any country in the Western Hemisphere.

This, he said, had been printed only this morning in the New York Times, in an interview with Hitler by John Cudahy, former American ambassador to Belgium. An editorial appearing in the same issue of the Times, was, the president said, such a good answer that it should be repeated in other newspapers. He characterized the editorial as a good statement of the value of such German assurances over the past few years.

The editorial said, among other things: "It is no news that his—Hitler's—present plans are not inimical to the United States. He is the best friend of the next nation on his list for plunder."

Returning to the German orders, Mr. Roosevelt said the second order directed Nazi sympathizers here to spread a report that Winant was bringing over a scarehead story that the British are just about all in and that Great Britain is talking peace.

Originated in Germany

That originated in Germany, he said, slowly emphatically, and all one had to do to realize the coincidence to which he had referred earlier, was to read some newspaper.

At this point a reporter asked the president directly whether Winant had brought any peace talk with him, and the president's quoted reply followed.

A correspondent inquired whom the president was accusing and of what.

Accuses "Certain People"

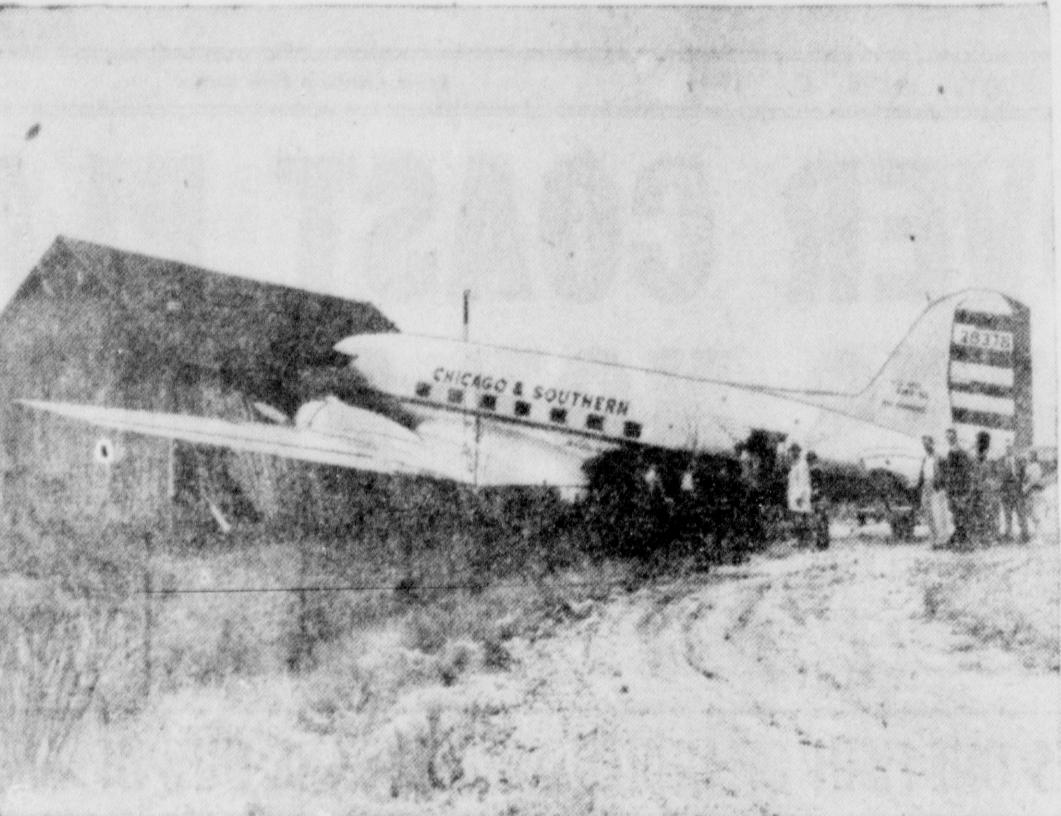

Mr. Roosevelt said he was accusing certain people in the United States of being duped by German propaganda ordered in Germany.

He was asked whether British spokesmen had not said, themselves, that they could hold out only a certain number of months without vastly increased American assistance, and replied that no such statement had been made by any responsible source—unless it was made in Berlin.

He could not reveal, he answered another question, how he obtained the information of the German orders, without losing sources of information.

At the same time, the president said he had no knowledge of a reported move by Japan to negotiate a treaty of neutrality and non-aggression with the United States.

BARN RAMMED, BUT ALL ABOARD AIRLINER SAFE

Forced to land in bad weather at the Joliet, Ill., airport when he was unable to put the big ship down at Chicago's municipal airport, Flight Captain Ralph Eames probably saved the lives of seventeen passengers aboard his successfully landing the plane, which came to a halt against a barn skirting the field. Eames and his co-pilot were injured.

advisory committee publicly "condemned and denounced" the North American strike and two others in progress on the Pacific coast.

Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, made public a resolution adopted by the labor advisory committee which asked an immediate end to these strikes.

In the shipyards in the San Francisco Bay area, at the North American Aviation Corporation plant at Inglewood, Calif., and of lumbermen in the Puget Sound area of Washington.

The committee has sixteen members, including representatives of the AFL, the CIO and the railroad brotherhoods. A majority signed the resolution, Hillman's aides said.

Roosevelt's Plans Secret

President Roosevelt's statement regarding new moves to eliminate strikes was made at his press conference in response to questions as to whether he intended to do anything about the aviation and lumber strikes. He gave no hint as to what he had in mind.

At the capitol, meantime, Senator Byrd (D-Va) asked in a statement for "firm and decisive action" to halt strikes and again demanded removal of Secretary of Labor Perkins for "bungling and inefficiency."

Byrd suggested, too, that the president set aside the forty-hour week.

"If America is worth fighting for, it is certainly worth working more than forty hours a week to save," the Virginian said. "If America is worth saving, it is worth suppressing strikes in vital defense work to save."

Three Strikes Cripple Defense

More than two-thirds of the 52,000 defense workers currently idle because of labor disputes are employed in plants affected by the three strikes which the OPM's labor committee condemned.

The eleven San Francisco shipyards and drydocks affected by a strike employ about 17,000 and have orders for $500,000,000 of defense work, including naval ship construction.

They have been tied up to varying degrees for nearly four weeks by a strike of about 2,000 AFL and CIO machinists who ask $1.15 an hour with double time for overtime. The machinists previously received $1 and double time and rejected a so-called master agreement providing $1.12 with time and one-half time. AFL leaders had branded this strike an "outlaw" one.

There has been widespread speculation that President Roosevelt might take action regarding the aviation and lumber strikes because in both these cases recommendations of the Defense Mediation Board have been ignored.

President Reticent

Asked about possible action with regard to these specific strikes, Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference he had no statement today—with emphasis on today.

He went on to say that he was not prepared to do anything while the Defense Mediation Board was working on the strikes. This led to the presumption that he would keep hands off unless the mediation board advised him that its efforts had proved fruitless.

Although both strikes are continuing in defiance of board recommendations, the board has not given up efforts to secure compliance with its proposals.

The board adjourned until Monday its hearings on the issues in the dispute between the CIO United Automobile Workers and North American Aviation. This was done to permit union leaders to return to Ingleside and confer with officers and members of the striking local.

The strike at North American was called Thursday despite the board's request that work continue while it held hearings on the union's demand for a union shop and a wage increase of ten cents an hour with a boost from fifty cents to seventy-five cents an hour in the minimum wage.

Murray Powerless

The latest move of the board in the lumber strike was a request by Philip Murray, as a member of the board and as president of the CIO, that the workers go back to their jobs.

Italian Plane Is Destroyed in Raid

CAIRO, Egypt, June 6 (AP)—The destruction of an Italian warplane in a raid on the airbase of Aleppo in northern Syria was claimed by the RAF middle East command today as the first evidence that Fascist aircraft had entered that French mandate.

The British had justified their three previous raids on Aleppo on the ground that German planes were using the Syrian base as a stepping stone to Iraq, but there had been no mention of Italian planes at Aleppo until today.

It was the seventeenth British raid on Syrian objectives.

The British suggested that the Italian aircraft at Aleppo had flown from the Italian Dodecanese base on the island of Rhodes and this was supported by a British raid yesterday on Rhodes itself.

The new raid on Aleppo mentioned only one plane was destroyed but the raiders reported hits on hangars and runways that raised columns of smoke from the asphalt and supply bases.

ain similar to the military council in the world war.

Addressing the Scottish National Association Hore-Belisha described the British defense of Crete as a military disaster, adding:

"We suffer defeat after defeat, and always for the same reasons—lack of appreciation, lack of preparations and imperfect execution of the project.

Each reverse is glossed over by the same series of incompatible explanations, and the narcotic of false confidence in the future is invariably applied.

"The bare description of what our imperial forces have undergone in Crete arouses not only the deepest emotion but the most serious foreboding."

A public debate on the Crete issue is expected next week after Parliament returns from its Whitsun recess. Prime Minister Churchill, Secretary of State for Air; Sir Archibald Sinclair or War Minister Capt. H. D. R. Margesson will answer critics, although no motion for a test vote of confidence is looked for.

Hore-Belisha frequently has criticized the government's conduct of the war. On May 7 Prime Minister Churchill in Parliament answered his criticism of Britain's production pace by stating that "we are making every month now as many heavy tanks as there existed in the British army at the time existed in the British forces."

The bare description of what our imperial forces have undergone in Crete arouses not only the deepest emotion but the most serious foreboding."

Patrick Pickets Peace Mobilizers

Congressman Starts One-Man Drive against "Appeasers"

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—In-dignant at the weeks of picketing of the White House by banner-carrying members of the American Peace Mobilization, an Alabama congressman got his dander up today and began a one-man counter march.

Rep. Luther Patrick, with a bucket of Irish potatoes on one arm and a big sign tied to a leg, paraded back and forth for more than an hour. The sign said: "Appeasers, communists, bundists, etc., can picket—but can they work?"

The American Peace Mobilization pickets have been on the job every day for weeks carrying placards protesting administration policies.

Patrick, peeling potatoes as he marched, told reporters this was not very heavy work, but "at least it is more than that crowd is accomplishing."

The Alabaman said he had some House colleagues ready to relieve him in the counter-picketing.

"I simply grew tired of letting a minority like this put over their ideas on the majority of us Americans," he said as he trudged along. "It's time the majority let their views be known."

The secretary of state, in discussing relations in general with Japan, emphasized anew that American policy in the Pacific was unchanged.

His comment was directed particularly to reports that Japan had sought a non-aggression or neutrality pact with the United States. In this connection, he reminded reporters that the United States long had had a general policy against non-aggression treaties with individual countries.

No Setup by U. S. C.

His informal comments were believed intended to forestall or counter any widespread impression that the United States was softening its attitude toward Japan in an effort to keep peace in the Pacific.

He asserted that American foreign policy in regard to the Pacific area had been fully and clearly set forth and that it stood unchanged, despite what he called crops of peace rumors that come at one time from Europe and at another from Asia.

LaGuardia's Headache

"There isn't a city or a state in the country that can afford the necessary equipment," he declared, and even if we had the money we couldn't get it within a year. My headache is going to be in finding out some way of paying for all this stuff."

He said no plans were being made for construction of air raid shelters in large cities, but that studies would be undertaken in event such action appeared necessary.

Trial blackouts and air raid alarms will be conducted in many cities in a public education program, the mayor declared.

Adjournment

expressed belief later that had the vote been taken within ten minutes of Starnes' speech, the amendment would have been adopted by an overwhelming majority. As the debate wore on, however, and members warned that the proposal might have disastrous effects, sentiment for it waned perceptibly, some congressmen said. Among those who fought the amendment was Rep. Casey (D-Mass.), who called it "hasty, ill-tempered, emotional."

An amendment by Rep. Rankin (R-Miss.), first woman member of Congress, to prohibit payment of funds in the bill for sending American troops outside the Western Hemisphere or this country's insular possessions was defeated by a vote of 73 to 39, after Starnes declared it would interfere with the implementation of the Monroe Doctrine.

From this same source we have learned that President Roosevelt exceeds Hitler in his aggressive designs upon other nations. This is a wholly outrageous interpretation of the president's statement that this nation would not permit the seizure by Hitler of island outposts from which he could menace our safety.

Such an interpretation implies a belief that we should acquiesce in any encroachment upon the Western Hemisphere that may suit Hitler's designs and that to oppose such encroachment is aggression. Only an obstinate determination to remain aloof from present day realities or a sadly limited comprehension can explain such a point of view."

New Chance for Benito

It is possible that Mussolini has asked and received from Hitler permission to try again in North Africa. There have been intimations here that Italian divisions from conquered Greece were being recruited and rested up in southern Italy for an Italian bombing of British bases in the Mediterranean.

If that is true, and it probably is, a renewed Axis drive from Libya toward Alexandria and the Suez Canal is in the cards. Adequate protection of its vital supply line across the Sicilian straits would seem essential.

A Rome report telling of the withdrawal from Sicily of German air forces based there since January could prove of major significance if true. Just what it means in terms of Axis strategy in the Mediterranean is distractingly British attention from the straits.

Appointed Scout Captain

Mrs. Ronald Krieger, Beall street, the first car that came up the steep, narrow drive was that of Professor Bisbee. Henry recognized it by its peculiar clatter. The professor was as well known for his automobile as for his brilliance.

The little fat man snapped off his headlights. He was alone. In the dim glow from the basement window Henry saw him turn his collar up around his throat as he scuttled hastily down the steps.

"That will be the police."

Henry would have preferred to be where the police were. The dark, empty building gave him the creeps as they turned her back to her throat. Laurence paled, but his jaw tightened at the same time, and he let her in.

"Here come Mrs. Willett and her father," Jones whispered. "Everyone's here, if I've counted right. Time for us to join them."

Henry walked forward like a man in a dream. "They've all gone in," he muttered to himself. "If they can, I can."

Mrs. Willett started as they joined her and her old father on the steps. "Oh!" Her black eyes widened in her bloodless face. "We didn't see you. I thought it was Mr. Ives coming out of the dark!"

"Oh, so that's it? He may be an interesting man to question."

"I don't mean that he might be guilty," Henry put in quickly.

"Perhaps he's learned something the rest of us don't know."

"If he has, he should tell the rest of us."

Henry turned slowly. Inside the door, illuminated on a low table banked with flowers, lay a coffin.

Miss Mosser Improving

Miss Elizabeth Mosser, of Washington, D. C., is improving following serious injuries sustained last Sunday evening when the car in which she was a passenger swerved from the road and struck a tree.

The car was being driven by her sister, Mrs. Mason Callis, of Mt. Lake Park, and was also occupied by another sister, Nora Ellen Mosser, 302 Cumberland street, and the three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Callis. Mrs. Callis, enroute to her home from near Swanton, said she had to run off the road to avoid hitting another car, the latter two going eastward on the highway.

The driver, who evidently was the cause of the accident, did not stop. A passing motorist brought the occupants of the wrecked car to Oakland where they were attended by Dr. Thomas A. Gonder, Jr., and Elizabeth Mosser was taken to Memorial hospital, Cumberland, suffering with a back injury. Mrs. Callis, her daughter and other sister were slightly injured.

The automobile was badly damaged. When it struck the tree the force of the impact bent the top to within a short distance of the back seat and had not the jar thrown Nora Ellen Mosser and the little girl to the floor of the car they would have been probably fatal injured.

Zalmon B. West Dies

Zalmon B. West, about 60, of Deer Park, died this morning, June 6, about 4:30 o'clock, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. S. Vandergrift, at Grafton, W. Va. He had been ill for four weeks.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. West. His wife, Mrs. Minnie Sisk West, died in 1920. He was a retired B. and O. car repairman and had spent most of his life in Deer Park.

Surviving are five children, W. E. Arville, Moorefield, W. Va.; Harry West, Keyser, W. Va.; Miss Myra West and Robert West, of Mt. Lake Park, and Mrs. Vandergrift; also one brother, W. H. West, Washington, D. C., and one sister, Mrs. Charles Jewell, Grafton. His body will be brought to Deer Park on Saturday.

Mrs. A. G. Rizer, 48 McCullough street, is home after visiting her daughter, Mrs. L. O. Leavell, Gadsden, Alabama.

Max Sapio, 54 Ormond street and Nutzy Ruffo, West Main street, this city, are home from Perry Point hospital, near Baltimore, where they had been patients for several months.

Miss Theresa Donahue and Miss Katherine Keating are visiting in Pittsburgh.

The Rev. Joseph Byrnes returned to Freeport, Pa., after visiting Edward J. Donahue and sisters, East Main street.

Dr. Hunter has been an honor student, and during the past year was one of two students in his class selected to serve as internes at the University hospital, Baltimore. He was president of the student council during his senior year and is a member of Nu Sigma Nu, a National medical fraternity.

As the two entered the basement

Marcia stifled a scream. Henry jumped. "Something's wrong!"

Jones restrained him. The big man did not seem surprised. "That's one of the reactions I expected."

"You expected . . . what's in there?"

"Nothing to be alarmed about."

Another car was coming up the drive. It was a service car from the garage. Big H. H. Svenson climbed slowly out. Behind him was Spinnell.

"I tell you, don't worry!" Spinnell was saying.

"But a man he was killed here last night!"

"That isn't going to hurt us tonight. The police must have good reason for wanting us here."

They descended the six steps to the basement door. Hanes gasped as the door was closing behind him.

The little clerk had a crawling feeling along his spine. What was he to the model railroaders saw as they entered the basement?

"We're a little early," Mr. Jones said, "but I think we should be. It will be interesting to watch the reactions of the various club members as they arrive."

Henry was skeptical. "The killer will be on his guard. He won't give anything away."

"Perhaps not. On the other hand, those who are innocent may make their innocence known."

Henry wondered if his was evident.

Wildwood Lodge was only half way to the village. The two men arrived just ahead of another hard rain. "Let's wait on the porch," Jones suggested.

"But there's a light in the basement."

"That will be the police."

Henry would have preferred to be where the police were. The dark, empty building gave him the creeps as they turned her back to her throat. Laurence paled, but his jaw tightened at the same time, and he let her in.

DON'T DISTURB

A Country Boy Hits the Big City with a Bang, and When We Say Bang, We Include the Big Sparklers

By ALICE DENNIS

Abner is a scion of an old American family. It is believed that his ancestors landed at Plymouth Rock. Whether they did or not is of little consequence, but there is positive proof that his forbears fought for American independence in the war of the Revolution. Abner is far from being a vain man. He does not boast of the traditional value of his ancestors. We merely refer to this to show beyond question that Abner is of old American stock. His father was a Civil War veteran who enlisted in Vermont and settled in Southern Illinois at the end of the war. There Abner was born and reared on a farm. A good dirt farmer, making money in the good years and taking it on the chin in the bad years. His face was tanned and wrinkled by sun and wind. His Adam's apple rarely fraternized with collar or necktie.

Abner might have gone on for the remainder of his days being an honest, simple son of the soil and might have gone to his grave unhonored and unsung if this thing called Destiny had not taken a hand in the deal. Destiny, however, unexpectedly sat at the table and began to play. Overnight riches came to Abner. Black gold began to flow over the plains of Illinois. Oil! That magic word changed the entire career of Abner and from a

"Nuts," grunted Abner. "I'm goin' bed!" And off he went.

When the rest of the family, after a night of wandering around New York, returned to their rooms, they found no trace of Abner. The bed had not been slept in. Alarmed, Lydia called the assistant manager.

That august person made a thorough search of the rooms. Soon a great healthy snore came from under the bed. They looked beneath the bed. There was Abner fully dressed, fast asleep with his coat under his head for a pillow. They woke him up.

"What in heaven's name is the meaning of this, Abner?" asked Lydia in a voice of mortification.

"Etiquette, Lydia," said Abner. "That's what you sent me to New York for. When I came up here awhile ago there was a sign on the door. The bellboy took it off and put it on the bed. I wouldn't break the rule of the hotel. That wouldn't be etiquette. See that rule?"

Abner pointed to the bed on which rested a placard. "Please Don't Disturb!"

AN EXTRA ADVANTAGE

EVERYBODY knows that a defender, making the opening lead against a slam, a game or even a part score contract, usually hates to start the suit which was bid first by the declarer's side. There are plenty of good reasons for this, most of them obvious. Consequently, if the first suit bid was one not topped by high honors, the defenders are more than likely to lead a different suit and therefore give the declarer an advantage, especially if the led suit is well topped. Isn't that an extra advantage you obtain from opening the bidding with a suit not strongly headed, when the logic of your distribution also dictates it?

What would you lead against that bidding? Wouldn't you pick the unbid suit—diamonds? Certainly most players of high rank would. The actual lead, in the duplicate tournament where this hand was dealt, was the diamond

2, and East set the contract at once with his two tops.

At another table, a sound bidder, Arthur L. Pulver, desiring to show both of his four-card suits so as to throw any possible No Trump contract into his partner's hand, to cause a probable spade lead to be up to the queen if the side bid, made an opening bid of 1-Diamond. His partner answered with 1-Spade. Mr. Pulver then bid 2-Clubs and North 2-Hearts. Now fearing no suit, Mr. Pulver jumped to 3-No Trumps. North invited slam with 5-Spades.

If the game had been rubber bridge, Mr. Pulver said he now would have bid 6-Spades, but it was duplicate and top might be earned by making the slam call in No Trumps, so he bid 6-No Trumps. He felt especially sound about this because, having opened with diamonds, he considered a lead of that untopped suit very unlikely, unless the opening leader happened to have the ace.

West was effectually scared away from the diamond lead, choosing, instead, his heart 7, so the slam was made, plus an extra trick, as poor East "went to bed" with his diamond ace.

Your Week-End Lesson
What are the three different kinds of situations, in play of a suit contract, wherein one defender can show by use of a high card his preference regarding his partner's switch to the higher-ranking of the other two side suits, and can indicate his probable preference for a switch to the lower-ranking one by use of a low card?

NO. He has a patient mother and a sympathetic father.

From the time when he could toddle, he ran freely into the street and across it, when some adult was not near him. He had done much damage to the furniture at home. The sight of him with his approaching parents as guests put terror into the hearts of their hosts. Sometimes the parents were able to keep Louis engaged in activities which deterred him from destroying things; but unless they were very vigilant he might soon be exploring the whole house, appropriating what he pleased; or, he might escape to wander several blocks away.

Parent Seemed a Bully

At home his father and mother tried to keep him from dangerous and destructive activities, solely by positive suggestion, by reasoning which usually became an argument followed finally by a snappy, shrill and shriller NO. In case such shouting failed, Louis Bard was pulled away or held by what seemed to him a big bully—the same kind parent who believed he had been a brute to spank the child and teach him the meaning of NO.

Yet Louis heard NO many times a day, often in the same single situation. Its repetitions were successively more rasping and more loud. Mother Bard was almost worn out with reasoning with him, explaining to him, arguing with him, exhorting him, and forbidding him. All the while she was annoyed at him and he at her.

An Ill Child

A few months ago Louis Bard was seized with scarlet fever, a light case. He was not ill enough to want to lie down. But the doctor said, "In order to protect this child's heart, he must keep entirely off his feet for three weeks."

Mother Bard explained to Louis, coaxed, and finally said, "You must."

She was able to keep him down most of the time. When,

on the second day, a fire engine

gers he was facing.

What the lad's health condition will tell. He may be an invalid for life because his parents believed that he never should be spanked. Wise parents do the necessary spanking while the child is well and little.

My fellow parents: Begin with the child as soon as he begins locomotion, to teach him, with the good old-fashioned spank thoughtfully planned and applied, the meaning of NO. Then he will be trained for later emergencies when the mere utterance of this monosyllable might save his life.

Solving Parent Problems

Q My baby, 18 months of age, hits me back when I spank him.

A He thinks you are fooling.

Next time you spank him, make it sting. After one or two such applications he will understand it is not a game. Limit the spanking to just one or two things he must never do which you and the other parent have agreed upon and see that he never can do that thing without getting instant spanking.

Three plants have been built in Sweden for making horse and cattle fodder from wood pulp that is said to equal oats in nutritive value although it does not contain protein.

You Still Want Style and Quality . . . But At Decent Prices . . . And This Is Where Bernstein's Shines

Palatial homes are white elephants; showy motor cars passe; the seriousness of present world conditions makes extravagance out of tune with the times; and the lavish in furniture styles out of date.

Good furniture is just as important as ever. Americans feel that now, above all, is the time their home should look most charming, that quality and good taste are sound investments. Here at Bernstein's you can find these without overtaxing your purse.

For your money's worth at Bernstein's is proverbial. Our prices do not include a cover charge for an expensive address, a rich "atmosphere." Our service is streamlined to eliminate useless costs.

We have a consuming interest in style and quality—not the faddish nor the extreme—but the practical, durable and the extra quality for which Bernstein's is famous.

Our devotion to quality is fundamental. When you shop in our store you pay for good furniture, not the inferior grade priced high; for we place our

Low Temperature Best for Souffle

That favorite summertime main dish—cheese souffle—will rise high and bake to tenderness (without benefit of a water bath) in an oven temperature as low as 300 degrees F.—but do not use higher than 325! Composed of milk and those proteins eggs and cheese, a souffle is simple to make and easy to bake when there's a modern gas range in the kitchen; its oven with even distribution of heat and positive control of temperature is vital to baking a perfect souffle, puffy and delicate.

In general, from forty-five to sixty minutes is the baking time required for this dainty dish, depending upon the size a recipe makes. It may be baked in a casserole of glass or oven pottery, preferably. And the old-fashioned silver knife test is the best test for doneness—inserting it into the center; when the knife comes out clean, the souffle is baked and ready to serve.

A regulation cheese souffle is so fragile it will wait upon no one; so speed from the oven to heated serving plates is essential, else the golden mountain of goodness may sink rapidly and toughen.

Canning Budget Is Recommended

COLLEGE PARK, June 6—With the canning season just around the corner, Maryland housewives should give careful consideration to the amount and kind of foods they plan to can this year and the equipment that will be needed for the job, according to Miss Margaret McPheeers, specialist in nutrition for the University of Maryland Extension Service. She points out that much time, labor, money and food will be saved by a little forethought.

The first thing to do is to make a canning budget so as to determine the kind and amount of food that the family will need. In making such a budget the housewife should take into consideration the type of foods grown in her locality and the number of months each is available.

For average conditions in Maryland, about 100 quarts of food is needed for each member of the family over two years of age. Normally, this would be divided into fifty quarts of vegetables, 20 quarts of tomatoes and tomato juice, twenty-five to thirty quarts of fruit, six quarts of jellies and preserves, six quarts of pickles and relishes, and six to eight quarts of meat.

All canning equipment should be checked over to see that it is adequate and in good condition. A pressure cooker is necessary for meats and most vegetables, and a waterbath canner will be needed for fruits and tomatoes. The cookers should be carefully checked over and new parts obtained, when necessary. Likewise, a check should be made to determine the number of jars, cans, rubbers, and lids that will be needed and the condition of those already on hand.

Miss McPheeers will be glad to answer any other questions on canning, especially those relating to the use of pressure cookers.

Asparagus Idea For Breakfast

With plenty of green asparagus stalks to be had from the garden or market, here is a timely suggestion for breakfast. Corral these ingredients: one large bunch fresh asparagus, one-half pound liver sausage (pork sausage may be substituted), six slices buttered toast and some cream sauce.

Cook asparagus quickly in boiling water, using top of double boiler. When tender, drain and place several stalks on each piece of toast that has been covered with thin slices of sausage. Cover with cream sauce and serve.

Strawberry Cocktail

For a delicious fruit cocktail, wash slice and sweeten strawberries—one half cup sugar to one pint berries. Place two cups of diced orange in bottom of glass serving dish. Add strawberries and top with two cups sweetened diced grapefruit. Then add a few whole berries for garnish.

Refreshing Drink

Here is a refreshing drink for hot summer days. Materials for it include six oranges, two lemons, one cup sugar, one quart water and some ice cubes or ice. Combine fruit juices and sugar and place in serving dish. Add ice cubes and water, then serve in glasses, adding one ice cube and a maraschino cherry to each glass.

Some Food Ideas for Father's Day

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Your Father's Day plans doubtless call for one of Dad's favorite foods. And you can bet that he will be doubly pleased if dinner on that special day includes a tidbit made by the children themselves.

It need not be fancy. A plain cake, Susan's first, perhaps, or a batch of cookies, made by Anne—will make him mighty proud.

Watch Dad go for this refreshing salad with its zippy dressing. Peel and halve an avocado. Discard the seed. Cut avocado in slices, sprinkle with lemon juice, and chill. Mix a cup of cooked asparagus with 2 tablespoons French dressing and chill. Arrange avocado slices with the asparagus on any crisp salad green, also ice cold. Then surround with thin slices of crisp radishes and top each portion with a thin slice of Bermuda onion.

Now for the dressing: Crumble 2 tablespoons Roquefort cheese into 1/4 cup chilled French dressing, add 1/4 teaspoon each of chopped olives, minced parsley and catup or chili sauce. Add a few "sprinkles" of lemon juice and serve poured over the salad. This salad and dressing makes enough for 4 or 5.

Creole jellied salad is easy for young cooks to master, and it goes well with a chicken or roast dinner. Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin in a cup of boiling water and 1/2 cup pineapple juice. 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup diced green peppers, 2 tablespoons each of parsley, chopped pickles and onions. Mix in 1/2 teaspoon salt and a speck of paprika. Pour into mold, rinsed with cold water, and set in refrigerator. Unmold on shredded lettuce and spread lightly with mayonnaise.

Chocolate pie always stands out as a man's dessert, and this one has a fool-proof crust. Mix 2 cups rolled unsweetened zwieback with 1/2 cup butter, melted; 1/4 cup sugar and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Reserve a half cup of this crumb blend and pour the remaining into a buttered shallow dish. Chill until filling is ready.

To make the filling soak a tablespoon of granulated gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water, for 5 minutes. Cook 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup cocoa, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 beaten egg yolks and 1/2 cup water in a double boiler until creamy. Stir constantly. Mix in gelatin and stir until it has dissolved. Add a teaspoon of vanilla and mix in 4 beaten egg whites with another half cup of sugar added. Pour the filling into the crust.

First Aid Teacher To Give Courses In Tucker Towns

Gordon Shrader Will Start
Instructions Monday
June 9

PARSONS, June 6.—Gordon Shrader announced here today that classes in standard and junior first aid courses will be given in Parsons, Hambleton and Hendricks starting on June 9.

He will also conduct classes in any other town or rural community in the county where ten people or more will enroll. Shrader, first aid instructor has been holding classes for the Parsons CCC Camp for the past year. He and State Trooper R. G. Coen are the only two certified instructors in Tucker county at the present time.

Classes will be conducted one evening each week and standard certificates will be given to those completing the course. The tuition is free, but the approximate cost of material will be seventy cents per students. This project is being sponsored by the local works progress administration and the Tucker county board of education.

Double Birthday Party

Mrs. E. F. Creegan and Mrs. Amanda Ruckel of Davis entertained with a double birthday party in honor of their son and daughter, Helen Creegan and Jimmy Ruckel, for their ninth birthday.

Those present were Jimmy Bowman, Harry Phelps, Don Gneegy, Jennings Vandenberg, Peggy Kerns, Carl Kline, Dickey McDowell, Dorothy Hinkle, Lois Lantz, Dorcas Faugh, Dorothy and Margaret Hall, Mary Pat Kerns, Betty Johnson, Bill Dumire, Jennie Corell, Maxine Eirich, and John and Joan Creegan.

Vesper Services

The Parsons high school 4-H club held their vesper services at the Parsons high school yard last evening with 45 attending. Miss Arlene Hebb as sponsor had charge of the program that included the following: Poem by Lois Gatrell, Penny "Seeking the Best Companions," by County Agent, A. L. Kidd, and Prayer by Richard Riley.

Other poems were read by June Felton and Cecilia Ann Stansaker, and the following songs were sung: "Evening Prayer," "Now the Day is Over" and "I Would Be True."

Road Construction Nears Completion At Moorefield

Every Primary Road in County except South
Fork Paved

MOOREFIELD, June 6.—The State Road Commission will complete the last six miles of the road being excavated between Baker and Moorefield this week and the work of laying the stone base has already started.

The huge cuts made by the heavy equipment and with the aid of prison labor cut the distance between Moorefield and Baker nearly two and a half miles. Thirteen curves have been eliminated by straightening the road.

Pavement is complete between Wardensville and Baker. The paving will be completed this week between the Virginia line towards Harrisonburg and Baker some time this week and the finishing touches on the road from Baker to Moorefield will be under way. Completion of the work will mean that every primary road in the county except the one up the South Fork will be paved.

The completion of the John Mar- shall highway running from Charles- town to Washington, D. C., was as- sumed when the workmen started the six-mile stretch from Wardensville towards Strasburg this week. This last link in the highway which will save nearly thirty miles of driving between the two capitals has been under discussion for the past five years by the state road de- partments of Virginia and West Virginia. The Virginia road com- mission promised completion of their section providing West Vir- ginia started work on the controver- sial six mile link.

New Ensilage Process

Virgil Mathias completed filling his two new silos this week with green alfalfa and barley, using a process never before tried in this section of the country. The process is widely used in the mid-west and through the south and consists of green alfalfa or other fodder mixed with phosphoric acid or molasses, which ferments to ensilage. A gain of twenty per cent in the food value of the fodder is the result.

Hay crops are not cured and can be worked even during wet weather.

The proportion of acid used was one gallon of acid and five gallons of water to each load. A slightly larger amount was used in the bar- ley. After the silos are filled, they are sealed and weighted on the top, similar to kraut.

Stock Leaders Sell Off Slightly

In Dull Session on the Exchange

Only a Few Issues Manage To Close the Day on Upside

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, June 6 (P)—Stock leaders slipped by minute fractions today in hesitant, small dealings.

Here and there a few issues loomed as gainers but their presence was noted mainly because of their rarity.

The Associated Press index of sixty selected stocks fell for the first time in five sessions, dropping 1 of a point to 402. Transactions totaled only 327,570 shares compared with 604,550 yesterday.

During the last hour, some interest was aroused on the drowsy floor of the exchange by a sudden climb of 6 points by Jones & Laughlin Steel preferred. The company's common stock rose 2% in the curb. Operators heard rumors the independent steelmaker might soon pay accumulated preferred dividends of $47, opening the way to common stock payments.

Among the few issues on the upswing were Sperry, International Nickel, Owens-Illinois, Texas Corp., and Continental Banking preferred. The last, gaining a point, made a new 1941 high. Inclined lower were U. S. Steel, Montgomery Ward, Douglas, duPont, American Smelting and American Telephone, Santa Fe and Fajardo Sugar, the last reaching a new 1941 low.

NEW SCREEN SIREN

The intense look in William Holden's face is occasioned by his proximity to the sensational new screen siren, Veronica Lake. Their romance is part of the story of the Paramount air thriller, "I Wanted Wings," now at the Strand theater.

Ray Milland Served

In British Cavalry

Ray Milland, now an American citizen, was once a horseman in the British Household Cavalry, the King's personal body-guard. Quite suddenly an opportunity arose to become a motion picture actor. His first role was in an English film called "The Flying Scotsman." It was a title that aptly foretold what was to happen when he was to come to Hollywood a few seasons later. In a very short time Milland, in Hollywood, was cast as an aviator in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," fame, produced. Players include Osa Massen, Reginald Owen, Albert Bassermann, Marjorie Main, Donald Meek, Constance Gilchrist, Richard Nichols, Charles Quigley and Gwilym Andre.

The locale is Sweden. Elaborate sets and costumes, thrills of skiing and other winter sports, a wild ride over a huge gorge in a cable tram are among the highlights of excitement worked into the amazing psychological plot.

COMING IN PERSON

Katherine Joyce, the pretty eighteen-year-old vocalist featured with Gus Arnhem and his orchestra, appears at the Maryland theater Monday, for a one day engagement.

Beautiful criminal under a new environment and with a new viewpoint gradually changes as the woman in her is developed, forms a fascinating study in human emotions punctuated by a dramatic plot. The sinister partnership of which she is the center, the love of a child, and other gripping details of the story are mingled with thrills of wild rides and other breath-taking excitement.

George Cukor, who directed "The Philadelphia Story," directed the new production, and Victor Saville of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" fame, produced. Players include Osa Massen, Reginald Owen, Albert Bassermann, Marjorie Main, Donald Meek, Constance Gilchrist, Richard Nichols, Charles Quigley and Gwilym Andre.

The locale is Sweden. Elaborate sets and costumes, thrills of skiing and other winter sports, a wild ride over a huge gorge in a cable tram are among the highlights of excitement worked into the amazing psychological plot.
